O DEATH, WHERE IS THY STING?
O DEATH, WHERE IS THY STING?
O death, where is thy sting?
The Proverbs of China

And there is a儿 old proverb that says,

"He who is kind to others, is also kind to himself."

This proverb serves as a reminder for us to treat others with kindness and compassion, knowing that doing so will bring us happiness and fulfillment.

In the Bible, Proverbs 11:25-26 states:

"A trustworthy friend is hard to find, but a true friend is a real treasure.

And it is the friend who is kind to others, who is also kind to himself."

This verse emphasizes the importance of kindness and compassion in our relationships with others. It reminds us that just as we should treat others kindly, we should also treat ourselves kindly, recognizing that kindness towards others is a reflection of our own character and values.

The Proverbs of China continue to be a source of wisdom and guidance for people today, offering insights into the human condition and the nature of the universe. Through these proverbs, we can gain a deeper understanding of ourselves, our relationships, and the world around us.
Perhaps the most severe and most solemn warning of all, we find in Hebrews 10:26–31:

For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries. He that despised Moses’s law died without mercy under two or three witnesses. Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace? For we know him that hath said—

“Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord.”
